FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CHARLESTON, IL--Dr. Carol Holden has been named Director of Continuing Education at Eastern Illinois University, effective Aug. 22.

Holden is currently serving as Conference Program Director for the Office of Continuing Education and Public Service at the University of Illinois. She has held that position since 1978.

Her career includes positions as public school and university instructor as well as recording artist.

Holden was named Director of the Alternate Teacher Education Program at the University of Illinois in 1975, Project Director of the Illinois Cultural Studies Project in 1977 and Co-director of the Historic Preservation Education Project in 1979.

She was the recipient of the first annual Phillip E. Frandson Award for Outstanding and Creative Programming in 1983.

In 1951-53 she was a hornist for the Denver Symphony Orchestra and in 1966 became a recording artist with both the Leonhardt Consort of Amsterdam and the Concertus Musicus of Wien.

Holden received a B.A. in Music in 1967, an M.S. in Music Education in 1970 and a Ph.D. in Education in 1975, all from the University of Illinois.

Holden said she "looks forward very much to my new association with Eastern Illinois University and to working in continuing education with the faculty and staff."
